

Daphne joined the Advisory department of PwC Greece in 2014. She currently holds the position of Manager in the Strategy and Operations team, specialising in the provision of consulting services to the Public Sector. She has acquired sound experience in project management through leading national or European projects in areas such as: policy making formation and policy evaluation, reform strategy formulation and design and implementation. She has also led and carried out projects focused on the programming of structural funds, assisting public financial institutions in the design of financial products as well as formulation of financial strategy and product portfolio. She has acquired a deep experience in coordinating teams, organising and carrying out best practices and benchmarking exercises, analysing and disseminating their outcomes as well as strategically using their results in order to formulate suggestions for improvement.

She has significant experience in projects within the public sector and specifically on matters of strategic planning and policy making on a variety of issues. Such projects include, but are not limited to, policy recommendations on overcoming regulatory and administrative barriers in public administration, fostering entrepreneurship, process optimisation and others.
